ELibrary offers full-text articles from popular magazines, newspapers, reference books, and TV transcripts.

1. Type your search terms in the search box.
2. Notice that the icons on the database web page have check marks under them representing the different types of sources that you will be searching.
3. If you wish, narrow your search by date, publication, etc., in the Advanced Search.
4. Click the Search button.
5. The eLibrary Results page appears. You can narrow down which type of article you would like to view by clicking on a particular icon, or by using the narrowed terms given in green at the top.
6. Click on the underlined title of an article to view it and the full text of the article will appear.
7. There are several options listed across the top of the page. “Jump to best part” will bring up what the editors consider to be the most important part of the article.
8. You can print or email the article.
9. Click citation view to bring up information that you will need to include in your source citation or works cited. Always double-check your citations with an MLA handbook.
